DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election without traverse of species I in the reply filed on 3/27/06 is acknowledged. However, no claims are withdrawn since all of claims are drawn to elected species.

Claim Objections

2. Claim 10 is objected to because of the following informalities: depending itself. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-3 and 7-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kay (US 4,428,643).

Kay discloses an optical pattern generator for generating an array of figures that are offset along an offset direction (Fig. 4), the pattern generator comprising a first multi-faceted rotating optical element (20) having a rotational axis and a plurality of facets that rotate around the rotational axis (see axis), wherein each facet causes an incident optical beam to generate a figure from the array of figures as the facet rotates through the optical beam (see the rays leaving light source 16), and one of more facets include an offset component that is substantially rotationally symmetric and centered on the rotational axis of the first optical element (see 20), wherein the offset direction is generally aligned with a radial direction of the optical element (see the rays with element 20 in figure 4). The array of figures comprises an array of scan lines or spots (see lines leaving 23), offset by uneven amounts or non-sequential (see the offset angles and that angles are varying) and offset elements are rotationally symmetric and lens-like element (see 20).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kay.

Kay discloses the claimed invention as set forth above except for a length of the scan lines or rotational speed of the optical element. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to choose the specified values, since it has been held that discovering an optimum value of a result effective variable involves only routine skill in the art. In re Boesch, 617 F. 2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980).

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 14-21 and 23-39 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

8. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: claims are allowable at least for the reason that the prior art does not teach or reasonably suggest at least one facet on the first optical element that includes a said offset component, the corresponding facet on the second optical element includes an offset component that is substantially rotationally symmetric and substantially centered on the rotational axis of the second optical element and that offsets the figure along the offset direction as set forth in the claimed combination.

Conclusion

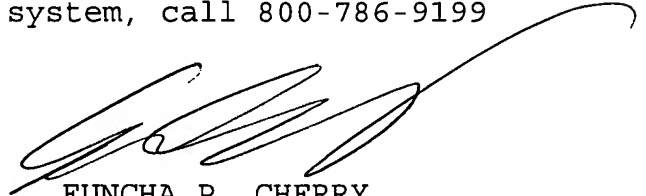

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Bramley (US 3,721,486) and Kramer (US 4,289,371) each discloses an optical pattern generator.
